The Réported Postal Robberies.

Chief Clerk Cramer of the railway mali service returned from Chicago yesterday, where he had been called to consult with Superintendent White relative to postal matters. In speaking of the reported wholesale robbery committed on the runs between Council Bluffs and Davenport, Ia., Mr. Cramer stated that he doubted the truthfulness of the re-port, "for," said he, "it would be impossible to carry on this system of stealing for eight or nine months without detection. I heard that the value of the property stolen would amount to $500,000, but I doubt this, for if amount to $300,000, but I doubt this, for if thieves took every registered package that passed over the line during the year they could not obtain so large a sum of money. My territory does not include Iowa, consequently I am not prepared to speak intelligently upon this subject, but the whole matter is now in the hands of Inspector Jim Stewart of Chi-cago, and he will make the investigations.¹³

"What will all these men do who have been discharged?" a reporter asked one of the workmen yesterday morning.

"Well," said the mechanic, as he paused a moment in tis work, "there will be very few of them that will be able to obtain work either in Omaha or Council Bluffs. Both of these places are filled with mechanics and work is very slack. Many of the men, I have been told, are going to Washington and Oregon."

The Chairman and the Ex-Chairman of the Board Talk.

Replying to other inquiries · Mr. Balcombe said:

From the day upon which I assumed the duties of chairman—three years and a month ago—to date I never thought for a moment that I would be my own successor. I have always acted upon the theory that I would be a one term official; that any man who unselfishly and zealously performs the duties of this office strictly within business lines, as he would condect his own business lines, as he this office strictly within business lines, as he would conduct his own business, ignoring all personal and political differences, friendships and enmities and fearlessly and honestly strives for the best possible results for the great body of taxpayers, as I know I have done, is sure to be a one-term official under the present state of public indifference and prosperity. While the great body of taxpayers may individually most heartily ference and prosperity. While the great body of taxpayers may individually most heartily approve of such a course they do not attempt to exert any influence in public affairs further than to vote occasionally. Hence they allow in a city of this size about one hundred active, interested persons who are either making money through their business transactions with the city or who are interested in political success to control, as a rule, the appointment of the public servants to their liking and in furtherance of their financial or political interests. Therefore, I never expected to be my own successor, and let me say that my successor now will meet the same fate if he pursues the same course that I have.

Being asked whether he had any plans for the future Mr. Balcombe replied: "Soon after my entering the office I told an old friend that when my term was ended I should see a little of this big world in which I thought I had done as much hard work as the next one. This last remark was scarcely in consonance with an assertion which Mr. Birkhauser made a very few weeks ago to the very same reporter whom he addressed this morning. Jack Dowling, the great Burlington rust ler, ticketed forty-three of the discharged Union Pacific employes Tuesday evening. A Northwestern agent tried to get them but they boldly repudiated that line be-cause of its close relations with the Union Pacific. Showed Their Appreciation. General Passenger Agent John Francis division superintendent, J. R. Phelin and General Agent A. C. Ziemer, of the Burlington, have been complimented by the newspaper men with whom they took an excursion

Decorated With the Shield. Since the publication on Monday last of C. H. McKibbin's record as general purchasing agent of the Union Pacific, hundreds of peo-

They discovered a distinguished feature in the shape of a handsomely carved shield like that of the Union Pacific trade-mark set in the front wall as a keystone over the main entrance.
